As a rule, start-ups don't have sufficient funds to afford everything they need for effective activity. In recent years the investment industry, and in turn investors, have introduced a new gauge: Mevision Holdings – Environment, Social and Governance – as a supplement to traditional financial gauges.

Mevision Holdings changes are happening faster than ever, reshaping how people live and invest. We believe that Mevision Holdings factors are going increasingly mainstream and can be used to drive investment outperformance.

Investing for a sustainable future
The era of green bonds has arrived. We are seeing the increasing use of bond markets to raise capital to fund the low-carbon economy, especially from the issuance of 'green bonds'.

While many in the fixed income market are grappling with green bonds, others are working out how best to incorporate broader environmental, social and governance Mevision Holdings strategies into their portfolios, a task rapidly growing in importance.

Why does it matter?

Mevision Holdings changes are happening faster than ever, reshaping how people live and invest. We believe that Mevision Holdings factors are going increasingly mainstream and can be used to drive investment outperformance.

Making the first step right is crucial to the long road of investments. Of the five steps, the first is to assess your risk tolerance and decide the most suitable asset allocation for yourself. Different people have different attitudes towards investment. Some are not willing to take any risks or withstand losses, and therefore would rather forgo potentially higher returns. Some are willing to take some risks but tend to avoid huge volatility. Some are willing to take risks in exchange for returns that outperform the markets.

How to gauge one's risk tolerance? Look at your investment horizon. Put it simply, the longer your investment life, the higher the risk you can take because you can afford the time to last a cycle, which helps smooth out short-term volatility. For instance, a young person just starts working, who is still far from retirement, can take more risk.

Sustainable investing

On the contrary, the shorter the investment period, the lower the risk one can take. Assuming you are going to retire next year, and not receiving any regular income, you just do not have the time to recover all losses if your investments take a nosedive all of a sudden.

Besides, your risk tolerance is dependent on your life goals. Ask yourself if you need to set aside funds for your children's education? Are you going to buy a property in the near future? These factors will have an impact on your cash flow. After all, we all need to reserve some cash at all times just in case there are emergencies.

Balancing risk and return is the key to long-term investment isn't it perfect to have an investment tool that always tops the performance league, and investors can stay worry-free just by holding it? The truth is that there are ups and downs in all economic cycles and the markets are capricious. Even investment experts find it hard to predict the performances of all asset classes.

Based on historical data, the same asset can perform drastically differently during different investment cycles. The best-performing asset can turn out to be the worst laggard in 2018.

That suggests no particular asset can be an all-time winner.
Investors should therefore avoid putting all eggs in one basket but allocate assets across different sectors and geographies. That could help diversify the risk of an investment portfolio, and capture investment opportunities at different times for more stable returns in the medium- to long-term.

To make diversification works, an investment portfolio should include assets that are complementary, that tend to react differently to the same macro condition. More precisely, some negative elements in the market might cause an asset to decline sharply, but pose little threats to another. In the world of investment, such pairs are called lowly-correlated assets. They can effectively balance the risk and return of an investment portfolio.

Portfolio management

In the investing journey, investors should start off by constructing a portfolio that accommodates their investment objectives and risk profiles. However, setting up the initial asset allocation is merely a starting point. It is equally important to regularly rebalance the portfolio to ensure the asset weightings are consistent. Overlooking the need to rebalance the portfolio can prevent investors from achieving their long-term investment goals.

Market changes shift portfolio away from initial objective

In an investment portfolio, the relative weights of different asset classes may change due to market fluctuations, which lead to a shifted asset allocation that deviates from the original target. In this case, rebalancing the portfolio will mean restoring the weightings of portfolio assets to the original designed levels.

Hedge Funds and Private Equity

The Company's investments in externally managed private equity funds and hedge funds, as well as private equity direct and co-investments.

The portfolio seeks to maximize risk-adjusted returns and diversify exposure by industry and geography, while giving the Company a global view of the alternative investment landscape.

With our archiving capacities and constant education of our staff, monitoring ever changing regulations and global finance requirements we are sure we can be a valuable ally in your expansion.

Investment Management

The Company established the Investment Management division formerly known as Principal Investments and began its evolution into a leader in alternative investing. Investment Management leverages the Group's expertise, network, and financial strength to seek attractive risk-adjusted investment opportunities across global markets and sectors.

Hit your investment targets with the right approach

Once you have identified your investment targets, you can put your cash into different asset classes and construct a portfolio based on your risk tolerance. The idea of asset allocation is to include equities, bonds and other investment tools in a basket. Since different investment vehicles come with different risk-return profiles, asset allocation is never easy.

Generally, the higher the potential return of an asset class, the higher the risks it carries.

With different packages, our system is modelled to accommodate everyone no matter how much you have to invest.

FRAUD PREVENTIONS/MANAGEMENT

Strategies/Techniques For Building Effective Fraud Management Listed below are SOME VITAL techniques to address weaknesses in internal controls (i.e., removing the Opportunity element) that can improve your fraud risk management program with better fraud detection and responsive control capabilities.

Detecting fraud with risk indicators are “metrics used by organizations to provide an early signal of increasing fraud risk exposures across the organization. And when designing, assessing, or monitoring systems of internal control to limit the risks of fraud, significant value can be derived from incorporating indicators of fraud into systems of control.”
Some examples of fraud risk indicators include:
There are ineffective controls such as inadequate segregation of duties or insufficient data security.

Transactions are processed by people who would not usually process those transactions.
Utilizing technology to continuously monitor these fraud risk indicators is a great way to detect fraud proactively.
ACTIVATION OF continuous control monitoring MEVISION HOLDINGS MANAGERIAL BOARD have officially recognized Continuous Controls Monitoring as one of a risk management product category, and it is highly recommended for improving your fraud detection capability.

AUTOMATED artificial intelligence & machine learning.
To combat today’s sophisticated fraud risks,

MEVISION HOLDINGS have employed (AI) AND (ML) empowered data analytics to detect inconsistent usage patterns. Tools that use AI and ML can replace the older rules- and signature-based tools to dramatically improve the effectiveness of your fraud prevention, detection, response, and recommendations process.

Furthermore, AI & ML can enable continuous (24/7/365) fraud monitoring and real-time reporting.
Maintain effective internal controls
Internal controls are the foundational enabler of your fraud risk management program. You cannot manage risk.

The Embassy of the Czech Republic in London in cooperation with the Association of Economic Representatives in London (AERL) hosted a seminar on ‘Prevention of Fraud in Business’ on 20 September 2019. Ambassador Libor Sečka welcomed Commander Karen Baxter to speak to 50 economic representatives and police liaison officers from foreign Embassies about the recent trends of fraud and cybercrime and the practical measures which foreign missions can take on and how to alert and assist businesses and citizens in their countries on ways to avoid becoming a victim and what they can do if alerted to a crime.

In his opening remarks, Mr Aleš Opatrný, Head of the Economic and Commercial Section at the Czech Embassy, pointed out the most common types of business frauds committed against Czech businesses in the UK by criminals. The methods and crimes are common to many other countries.

In her keynote, Commander Baxter highlighted the first step to be taken should be to alert Action Fraud so that all the information can be collected and disseminated to local UK polices forces for possible investigation and to look at common threads.

The Embassy and the AERL would like to thank Commander Baxter for addressing the diplomats and police liaison officers on this very important issue.

The fraud prevention seminar was organised by the Embassy of the Czech Republic in London under the Czech Presidency of the Visegrad Group and in cooperation with the Association of Economic Diplomats in London and, the City of London Police.
